Read the following text carefully then answer the question below:

Thomas Edison, the brilliant and world-renowned inventor, was born in 1847 in the USA. Edison attended school for only a few months before his mother took over his education at home. In 1862, at the age of 15, Edison became a telegraph operator. Edison created his first invention in 1868 which was an electric recorder.

However, his journey towards success was not easy at all. At around 5:30 in the evening on December 10, 1914, a big explosion broke out in the famous inventor's plant. In no time, most of the factory was in flames. Although many firefighters and fire trucks rushed to the burning plant, the fire was too powerful to be put out quickly. Edison's sons Charles and William were sad and shocked as they watched the fire destroy their father's workplace. Edison didn't shout in anger or lock himself in his house. He didn't even try to put out the fire. Instead, he smiled and invited his sons to enjoy the view. Later that night, Edison told one of the reporters that although he was 67 years old, he was ready to start all over again.

Thomas Edison immediately began the task of rebuilding his plant. After just three weeks, with some money from his friend Henry Ford, Edison got a part of his factory running again. #### Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below: (255 words)

Coffee is probably the most popular drink in the world. It has many positive properties that are good for your health. Drinking coffee can help reduce the chances of some cancers and stomach diseases. It has had a long and interesting history on its road to becoming the much-loved drink that it is today.

The coffee tree was first discovered in Africa in the 9th century. The coffee berries that grow on the trees contain coffee beans, which can be made into a drink. Even though the drink we know as coffee is well known all around the world, most countries have their own special way of making it. 'Cowboy coffee' is made in Finland and Norway by mixing coffee and boiling water together in a kettle and pouring out the liquid into a cup.

Turkish coffee is made by mixing coffee and sugar in a small pot with a long handle called an ibrik. The ibrik is held over a fire and then removed when the coffee comes to the boil. The mixture is poured into a small ceramic cup and drunk slowly, leaving the remains of the coffee at the bottom. Italians typically drink small cups of espresso every day and usually do not even sit down when they order it; they drink it and leave. Many people in USA have an electric coffeemaker, which uses a filter to separate the water from the coffee. Hot water drips through the coffee and comes out as the drink they know and love.

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

Once upon a time, if we wanted to make a phone call or wait for someone to contact us, we had to sit at home or at our desks. There were public phones in the street, of course but it could be hard to find one that was working. So people didn't phone their friends as often. Mobile phones, these small pieces of electronic equipment which allow us to talk with friends and family while we are on the move, have dramatically changed the way we live.

Before the age of the mobile phone, our loved ones would sit around, worried sick if we were late coming home. There were no quick calls to tell our mothers that there would be guests coming for dinner. We would leave notes on fridges or desks to communicate messages.

But mobile phones have also had a negative effect and what people don't seem to realise is that we've lost something very valuable: having some private times. Now our friends and family can contact us whenever and wherever they want to. The way people communicate with each other is completely different now. It's difficult to talk to a friend without being stopped every couple of minutes by the ring of their phone. Most people don't see anything wrong in having a long talk on their mobile phones while forgetting all about the persons sitting opposite to them, to whom they should be talking to.

Of course, people could leave their mobile phones at home or even switch them off but no one ever does that. Why not? Because they think that they can't live without their phones.

B. Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

The 1920s was an exciting time for inventions. Some of the things invented around that time changed the lives of millions of people, and some of those inventions are still widely used today.

The invention with the biggest effect was probably the television. It was invented by a Scottish inventor. The first televised pictures were sent over a short distance in 1924. At first, the pictures on the screen were not clear. In 1928, images were sent from Britain to America. In the same year, the first colour images were successfully sent. The first television sets were sold for £25.

Another invention that became popular in the 1920s was the fridge. Before the 1900s, people used methods, such as salting and drying to preserve food, but fridges weren't invented until 1913 in the USA. Home fridges became very popular in the USA in the 1920s. Sales of fridges increased from 5,000 in 1921 to 750,000 in 1926. British people were less interested in home fridges than Americans. They thought that fridges were unnecessary because the weather in Britain was cooler.

Another popular invention of the 1920s was the traffic lights. It was invented in 1921 by a clever policeman named William Potts. Before traffic lights, crossing the road was very risky. Cars and people had to move through the traffic with no clear rules or signals to guide them, often leading to confusion and accidents. But thanks to William Potts, we now have traffic lights to help us know when to stop and when to go, making sure everyone gets where they need to go safely and easily.

a. Choose the correct answer from a, b, c, and d: (6 x 2 = 12 marks)

9. The main idea of the 3rd paragraph is:

- a. British people invented many machines in 1921.
- b. The use of fridges became popular in the 1920s.
- c. Sales of fridges decreased in 1926 for some reasons.
- d. People in Britain used home fridges for different purposes.

B) Reading Comprehension (16 Marks)

Read the following text carefully, and then answer the questions that follow:

If you like fresh air and seeing new places, why not go on a cycling holiday? In this article, we will help you plan the perfect holiday on two wheels. Firstly, decide whether you want to travel alone or with someone else. If you go by yourself, you can do whatever you want. For example, you can change your plans-more easily, but it can be more fun to travel with someone else. Wyou would rather share the experience, make sure you choose the right person. You will heed to get along with them and, of course, they will have to enjoy cycling

You will need to choose a place to go to. Then, you will need to think about your equipment, and the most important thing is the bike. If you have already got a bike, you can use it, but if you haven't, you can rent bicycles easily. You should also think carefully about the things you will need. If you take too many things, your bike will be too heavy. Only take enough clothes for a few days because they can be washed and worn again.

Lastly, don't go anywhere without travel insurance, which is a document that protects you if you have an accident. Travel insurance is also useful if somebody steals something from you. The insurance company pays you back for the things that are stolen. This document isn't usually expensive and you will be much more relaxed if you have got one.
